We thank Editor Halpin, of the Turner Valley Flare, for a copy of his recent publication, "Rhymes of Aberhartia." The cover title of the book is "Bible Pounding Bill and Other Rhymes of Aberhartia" in an exposition of the political fantasia that has happened in Alberta since a pedagogue and a preacher became a politician." IN MEMORIAM

INSTONE—Treasured memories of my dear husband, Harry, died December 5th, 1934. Lovingly remembered by Mabel and Freda.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

We have been enjoying a mild spell of weather here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tustian have gone to Lethbridge to spend the week end.

The Ladies' Aid of the United church were entertained by Mrs. M. A. Murphy at her home on Thursday afternoon of this week, fourteen ladies being present.

On Sunday night last at the "Amateur Hour" sponsored by the Chrysler people at Blairmore, Orin Burkhardt, one of our talented Cowley boys, was one of the lucky winners of a free trip to Lethbridge on Wednesday of this week. Orin can't read a note of music, yet he composed both words and music to the retellings that he played and sang in this contest.

There was a fairly large attendance at the boys' youth training demonstration at the Columbus hall last night, when some excellent physical feats were performed. We understand that the next session will be both the boys and the girls taking part.

CANADIAN LEGION BROADCASTS

The Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion of the B. E. S. L. has arranged a series of broadcasts on various highlights of the Canadian Army and the British Navy.

The first broadcast of this series will be on the air Friday, December 9th. On Friday last the following announcement was made:

The first series will deal with a very romantic and fascinating expedition undertaken in 1918 in which a select number of Canadians were withdrawn from their battalions on the western front and sent to Persia on a secret mission. The leader of this secret force was General L. C. Dumsterfield, who, in his youth, was immortalized by Rudyard Kipling as the "Stalky" of Kipling's stories "Stalky and Company."

It is the intention to make these stories as appealing as possible for the younger generation, and in this connection prizes will be offered to sons and daughters of members of the Canadian Legion who are in Grades 9, 10 and 11. There will be two prizes for students in each grade, one for boys and the other for girls.

You are invited to listen to this series, make notes of the material provided, and when the series has been completed send in an essay of not more than one thousand words, dealing with the subject matter provided in the broadcasts.

Remember, only those who are sons or daughters of members of the Canadian Legion are eligible to enter this competition. The essays should be handed in to the nearest branch secretary, who will affix the official Legion seal and forward them to the Alberta Command office in Calgary.

The first of the series will be on the air over Radio Station CFCH, the Voice of the Prairies, on Friday, December 9th, starting at 10.15 p.m. Successive broadcasts will follow every two weeks at the same time. The series will also be broadcast over an Edmonton station on alternate Fridays.

Watch for rules, regulations and other information to be published later.

Tom Uphill's proposed amendment to the British Columbia Liquor Act was defeated. It asked that the clause dealing with responsibility of a bartender or hotel keeper in supplying intoxicants to a minor be amended by inserting the word "knowingly."

A quiet wedding took place in Blairmore on Thursday of last week when Mr. Jack Wilson, well known proprietor of the King Edward Hotel, and lumberman, of Fernie, B. C., was united in marriage to Miss Violet Jakubec, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jakubec, of Fernie, B.C. The groom was supported by John Jakubec, the bride's brother, and Mrs. Mary Kwansy acted as bridesmaid. Rev. J. W. McDonald performed the ceremony. Their many Fernie friends extend congratulations.—Fernie Free Press.

One has to hand it to Aberhart for building up a strong position for his Social Credit party in anticipation of an election. It is apparent that there is no organization in Alberta right now that can beat him at the polls. The Liberals would rather entertain defeat than unity, and decapitate the unity movement almost at its inception . . . or at least right after Leader Gray was elected through its medium. A unity movement must have more to its background than the mere defeat of Aberhart. Its programme must be constructive and inviting to the harassed voter. Perhaps Albertans will see the light by the time an election is called . . . but they're not looking for it right now.—Clarenselton Local Press.

HOCKEY DOPE

Kimberley Dynamiters arrived back in town on Tuesday, after a most successful trip to New Westminster and Spokane.

Playing at the coast city as the main attraction of the opening of the new rink there, the Dynamiters won handily 11-5, and on the return trip stopped off in Spokane long enough to defeat Gonzaga University squad 5 to 4.

Goal scoring was pretty well split up among the various boys on the team. In the New Westminster game, Gordie Wilson was the big noise, as he sagged the hemp five times. Other goal getters included Chris Sorenson two, Harry Brown two, Harry Robertson one and Scotty Ness one. Assists went as follows: Redding three, Kemp two, Almack, Dick and Ness, one each.

In Spokane it was Redding two, Wilson two and Kemp one in the goal scoring column, with the assists not available.

Let anyone think that Gonzaga is a set up it should be noted that they have played games this fall with both the Spokane Clippers and the Portland Bucks, of the coast professional loop, and lost each game by one goal margins. The squad cleaned up on inter-collegiate competition in a tourney in California last spring and would up the season with a big win over the powerful Minnesota University squad. Yes, they take their hockey seriously at Gonzaga.

At the coast the Dynamiters came in for some fine comment from the sports writers. We wish that space would permit us to re-write some of the nice things said about the squad. They were compared more than favorably with the Vancouver Lions, pro squad, in fact the comparison was all in favor of the Dynamiters.

And don't forget, the trip was made without the services of Bill Burnett, ace defenceman, and the newcomers, Corbett and Strong.

Last addition to the Kimberley Dynamiters for the 1938-39 season was made last week with the signing of Jack Corbett, a young chap twenty years of age, from Winnipeg. Corbett was a former team-mate of Ernie Strong on the Winnipeg Falcon-Rangers, and comes well recommended.

The addition of Corbett gives the team at least three new faces, the others being LaFace (who, by the way, played goal in the Spokane game on Monday) and Ernie Strong. Besides these boys, Bill Johnson, of last year's junior squad, is making a grand effort to earn a place on the team. With the old-timers still on hand, we cannot see anything but a good Dynamiter team this winter.—Kimberley Bulletin.

Archie Ferguson, of Calgary, representing British Industries Limited, and several other guys representing everything but Japanese and German industries, visited The Pass last week, and were accorded quite liberal treatment. They proceeded to the west as far as Cranbrook, returning east through The Pass Metropolis on Wednesday evening. Archie has a car, a baby Austin, as Doro says, "only half the size of himself," but was obliged to leave "the baby" behind for special nourishment.

Aberhart is not so dumb that he can't analyze the vote in the City of Calgary. It was plainly demonstrated there on Wednesday that now when economic conditions have improved the taxpayers want sound and stable business men to handle their affairs. The unity of a country can't progress very far on the theory that no debts should be paid. If authorities would help less on the debt business and extend their efforts towards fair prices for the primary products, the debt situation would soon solve itself.—Clarenselton Local Press.

CARTER-RUDOLPH NUPTIAL

With Rev. F. A. Ramsay officiating, the marriage of Marion Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Rudolph, to Mr. Lindsay P. Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Carter, was solemnized Saturday evening at 8.30 o'clock in St. Stephen's church, West Vancouver.

Shaggy white chrysanthemums and palms adorned the altar for the ceremony, and mauve, gold and white chrysanthemums, with palms and autumn leaves, banked the chancel rail.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Alan Cleveland, of Dalmead, Alberta, as matron of honor, and Miss Reni McRae as bridesmaid. Mr. Glen Schnoter was groomsman, and ushers were Mr. Reginald Berry, Victoria, and Mr. Alfred Staley. Miss Ruby Hicks sang during the signing of the register.

Ivory satin in the princess mode fashioned the gown of the bride. Long tight sleeves extended in points over her hands, and the long skirt widened into a fan-shaped train. Her tulip veil, held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms, cascaded in soft folds over her gown and train, and her bouquet was a shower of Talamon roses, lily of the valley and violets.

For her sister's marriage, the matron of honor wore a gown of old gold velvet, in medieval style, with headress of old gold ostrich tips holding a short matching veil. Her bouquet was of bronze and gold chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid's gown of amethyst blue velvet also was in medieval style and her headress was of hatching velvet flowers with tiny bells. Bronze and gold chrysanthemums composed her bouquet.

Following the service, a reception was held at Rockhaven, Abbotford, the mothers of the bride and groom receiving with them. For the occasion Mrs. Rudolph wore a gown of midnight blue lace. Mrs. Carter's gown was of sheer navy crepe and her a picture model in matching tones.

Guests were received before a fire-place banked with palms and gold chrysanthemums.

Leaving later for a honeymoon in Seattle and Olympia, the bride donned a travelling costume of plain wool crepe in teal blue, with off-the-face teal blue tulle, a seal coat and black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Carter will reside in Vancouver.—Vancouver Exchange.

The groom was a former resident and school pupil in Blairmore, at the time when his parents resided here, and later when his father was town police chief.

Hon. John William Fordham Johnson, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, passed away at Vancouver on Monday morning on his 72nd birthday.

Cartoonist Cameron's book of cartoons on political events in Alberta is proving as big a seller as the Aberhart blue manual was in the days of the promised Social Credit dividend.—Drumheller Review.

The annual meeting of the Natal Michel Rod and Gun Club was held last week in the Kootenay hall at Natal, when the election of officers resulted as follows: Sylvia Murray, Natal, re-elected president; Mike Halko, Michel, re-elected vice-president, and James Terrian, Michel, re-elected secretary-treasurer. All officers were commended for their work during the past year. Miss Borstad, Primo Cimolini, Andrew Billy, Gord Travis and Dougald Mitchell were elected working committee. In an effort to raise the membership from 70 to 100, a banquet and turkey shoot will be held on Saturday, December the 18th.

The Aberhart government's debt refunding plan is running into a snag. People with money to loan at low rates of interest are the same world over—they check up on the borrower's past record. And furthermore, the lender has always something definite to say about the manner in which the money advanced is to be used and generally sees to it that all the past creditors are paid off in a fair and honorable manner. It is only natural for a lender to feel that, if those who loaned the borrower money in the past are ill treated, that eventually he will be meted out the same kind of treatment. Credit rating is still the big factor in the loaning business.—Drumheller Review.

GERMANY AND FRANCE SEEN IN MOVE FOR PEACE

Berchtesgaden, Germany.—Chancellor Hitler's approval of the proposed Franco-German peace declaration was seen in an announcement Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop probably would start "within the next few days" for Paris to sign the agreement.

The announcement was made after a conference of the two leaders which followed receptions by Hitler of distinguished foreign guests. Oswald Ernou, minister of defense of South Africa, first, and then King Carol and Crown Prince Michael of Romania.

Informed sources said the declaration would embrace three points:

1. A joint acknowledgment that peaceful and good neighborly relations between Germany and France constitute an essential element to the consolidation of Europe and maintenance of general world peace.

2. A statement to the effect no territorial issues exist between France and Germany of a nature likely to lead to conflict. Each country, it was said, will declare the other's boundaries are inviolable.

3. An agreement by both powers to enter upon joint deliberations in the international difficulties or points of issue concerning both.

Before he settled down with Von Ribbentrop for discussion of the proposed draft, Hitler conferred for an hour with Pirov and was with King Carol for three hours.

Pirov's European trip, which so far has taken him to Portugal, Great Britain, and Germany, was described as an informal tour of private character for information. The South African, accompanied here by South Africa's minister in Berlin, Stephanus Gie, originally was scheduled to meet Hitler for an extended visit. Suddenly the program was changed and only one hour was allowed for what was interpreted as being little more than courtesy call. It may become evident meanwhile, Mr. Pirov was coming to talk about the colonial.

Paris, Great Britain, and France, affirmed publicly their complete accord on national defense and diplomatic collaboration "for the preservation and consolidation of peace."

Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier, at close of conversations which followed the arrival here of Mr. Chamberlain and his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, read statements at the Quai d'Orsay in which each stressed total agreement on all subjects, considered.

Neither mentioned detailed points in their discussions. Mr. Chamberlain first announced Britain and France had signed complete accord on national defense and joint diplomatic collaboration for peace.

In his declaration, read to French and foreign newsmen, he said: "With us, national defense is one of the steps to be taken for preservation and conservation of peace in Europe."

Ceremony Was Simple

Trois Kings Attended Funeral Rites For Norway's Queen

London.—Three kings attended funeral rites for Queen Maud, of Norway, before the body was placed aboard a purple and black-draped train to begin the journey to Oslo.

King Haakon, of Norway, King George VI, and King George of Greece attended the simple ceremony in Marlborough house chapel.

Prebendary Launcelot Percival, precentor of the Chapel Royal, conducted the service, assisted by the Bishop of Oslo. The coffin lay on a catafalque guarded by four non-commissioned officers of the brigade of guards.

To Help Jews

London.—Lord Baldwin is planning a national appeal by radio on Dec. 7 in an effort to raise a national fund which will assist German Jews to refugees to find homes in other parts of the world. The appeal, it is announced, will be made in behalf of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic Church, all Free Churches, and the Jews themselves.

Endorses Chamberlain Policy

London.—Michael Marwus resigned as a member of the Labor party as a sign of his approval of Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy. Marwus, former Labor member of parliament and member of the party for 20 years, announced he would join the National Labor party, founded in 1931 by the late Ramsay MacDonald.

Havens For Refugees

Fertile Lands In South America Awaiting Development

Washington.—Proposed havens for British refugees in Africa and South America were described by the National Geographic Society as generally productive and fertile lands awaiting economic development.

British Guiana, one of the principal territories mentioned as a possible new home for Jews, is larger than England, Scotland, and Wales combined. It has a population of only about two persons per square mile.

Although there are 2,000,000 carats of diamonds and 2,000,000 carats of manganese, oil and nica have been almost untouched because river traffic is difficult.

The former German colony of Tanganyika in East Africa, now governed by Great Britain, has also been suggested as a refuge.

Tanganyika's 366,000 square miles of territory support profitable lumber and agricultural operations. Sisal, cotton, coffee, nuts and grain are among the country's major products.

Kenya, north of Tanganyika, also offers opportunities for settlers. It is larger than France, contains thousands of square miles of excellent farm lands.

Northern Rhodesia, mentioned as another possible refuge, occupies most of the central plateau of Africa. Mineral resources—copper, lead and zinc—have not been extensively developed there and the colony has attracted only about 10,000 white men.

To Aid Humanity

Vicount Nuffield To Provide Iron Lung To British Empire Hospitals

London.—Viscount Nuffield, motor maker and philanthropist, announced he intended to provide every hospital in the British Empire with an "iron lung."

He said he would donate about 5,000 of the respirators at a total cost of about $500,000 ($2,500,000) and that the initial production of 1,000 machines already was under way.

It was believed this latest benefaction of Lord Nuffield, who has given away $3,000,000 in the last two years, was prompted by recent outbreaks of infantile paralysis in Great Britain.

Lord Nuffield said: "I am commanding with 1,000 and will continue their manufacture until every hospital in the Empire which might reasonably be expected to use a respirator with advantage will be in the possession of one."

Asked about the outfitting districts of Canada and Australia, Lord Nuffield said these places might present some difficulty but "if they want one they must have one."

Where electricity is not available the lung may be operated by hand, he added.

Utilities Commission

BII Introduced In B.C. Legislature

Victoria.—Premier T. D. Patullo introduced in the British Columbia legislature a bill which would authorize the government to set up a three-man public utilities commission to regulate various utilities "subject to the legislative authority of the province."

The bill would give the board authority to control persons or companies which operate railways, street railways, trams, ferries, toll bridges, telephone and telegraph operations "where such service is offered to the public for compensation," gas, electric and power plants, furnishing water to the public, and buses or trucks as public conveyances.

The bill would omit operation of a taxicab by an individual from classification as a public utility.

Proposed Standard Time

Memory Of Sir Sanford Fleming Honored In Toronto

Toronto.—Sixty years ago Sir Sanford Fleming presented to the Canadian Institute a paper outlining his proposal to place the world on a basis of universal time. On Nov. 23 a unique ceremony commemorated the diamond jubilee of this historic event and with it was honored the memory of the great Scots-Canadian who undertook to regulate the clocks and, therefore, the business of the world.

Conference On Palestine

London.—Malcolm MacDonald told the House of Commons invitations have been issued for a conference on Palestine and was confronted with a suggestion from Geoffrey Mander, opposition Liberal, that the United States be asked to participate.

NEWS REEL IS SUPPRESSED IN PEACE INTEREST

London.—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons the British government acted in synchronism with United States Ambassador Joseph Kennedy to suppress a newsreel which the government considered might have had a "prejudicial effect" during the Czechoslovak crisis.

Under opposition questioning, Sir John said his government believed the newsreel would have hampered Prime Minister Chamberlain in his conference with Chancellor Hitler at Godesberg on the Rhine late in September.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, had asked why "representations had been made by His Majesty's government to the American embassy for withdrawal from a Paramount newsreel of items contributed by Mr. Wickham Steed and Mr. A. J. Cunningham?"

The chancellor did not say specifically that the government had approached Kennedy on the matter, but he declared "the ambassador of the United States, I understand, thought it right to communicate this to a member of the Hays organization and, thereafter 'certain excisions' were made from the newsreel."

The response was to the office of Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers-Distributors of America.

(Informed of Simons' statement, Mr. Kennedy said he referred the government's request to the Hays office but "it is inaccurate to give the impression I personally took any action which caused the newsreel to be changed." He said he "didn't even know the Hays office had taken any action" after he referred the matter to them.)

An opposition cry of "government censorship" and "a new 'compulsory' in the government's of Mr. Kennedy's action.

He said the United States ambassador was "good enough and therefore thought it right to take action tending to promote European peace."

The Paramount organization received Sir John's protest for their "sense of public duty" in making extensions from the newsreel, a commentary on the Czechoslovak crisis, including statements by Wickham Steed, a foreign affairs writer, former editor of the Times, and A. J. Cunningham, chief political writer for the News Chronicle (Liberal).

He denied there was anything "compulsory" in the government's of Mr. Kennedy's action.

He said the United States ambassador was "good enough and therefore thought it right to take action tending to promote European peace."

The Paramount organization received Sir John's protest for their "sense of public duty" in making extensions from the newsreel, a commentary on the Czechoslovak crisis, including statements by Wickham Steed, a foreign affairs writer, former editor of the Times, and A. J. Cunningham, chief political writer for the News Chronicle (Liberal).

Cost Of Mobilizing Fleet

London.—The cost of mobilizing the fleet during the September crisis, apart from measures which would have to be taken ultimately in any case and which were hastened by the events, was slightly less than £1,000,000 ($4,000,000), the House of Commons was told.

Lady Police On Duty In China

MONTREAL.—The supreme achievement of steam locomotive design in Canada, one of the 10 new Selkirk locomotives built this year for the Canadian Pacific Railway was put on public exhibition here.

This locomotive was designed by H. B. Bowes, chief of motive power and rolling stock, Canadian Pacific Railway, especially for service in the Canadian Rockies and is the heaviest and most powerful doing duty in the British empire.

Distrust In Canada

MONTREAL.—Canada has developed in recent years a problem of distrust similar to Czechoslovakia before it was dismembered by the Munich settlement, W. Allen Walsh, Conservative member of parliament for Montreal Mount Royal, told a service club luncheon.

Confers With Windsor

Premier Chamberlain Meets Duke In Paris Hotel

PARIS.—Prime Minister Chamberlain and the Duke of Windsor conferred here on what informed British sources said were plans for the former king to return to England with his wife.

The meeting was the first between the duke and a prime minister of Great Britain since he had a last talk with Earl Baldwin, then prime minister, shortly before abdicating Dec. 10, 1936.

Almost without notice the prime minister, here for talks on defence plans with French statesmen, went to the duke's hotel for a 20-minute conversation. His companion was Foreign Secretary Halifax.

Afterwards Mr. Chamberlain came downstairs with a smile. Lord Halifax kept his usual stolid mien.

Sources close to the duke indicated the prime minister's visit was another step in negotiations opened by the Duke of Gloucester, on Nov. 11.

At that time it was reported the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were looking forward to Christmas in England, perhaps at the traditional royal family reunion at Sandringham.

Smartly uniformed and well drilled, these women "cops" have been organized by the Japanese-controlled government at Peking, China. Their duties consist mainly in searching members of their sex suspected of carrying weapons or other contraband.

Chance For Women Writers

Prize Offered For Best Short Story Written By Canadian

TORONTO.—The members' memorial award of the Canadian Women's Press Club will be given next year for the best short fiction story by a woman resident of Canada, the club's national executive decided here. The award, a gold medal and $25, will be given for material published within the 12 month ending March 15, 1939. The executive appointed Winifred M. Stokes, Niagara Falls, Ont., chairman of a committee to survey the types of newspaper work being done by women in Canada. National president, Rose L. Shaw, Montreal, and with her, a committee of the Canadian section of the International Press Union, was named the club's representative on the committee preparing for the imperial conference of the E.P.U. to be held in Canada in 1940.

Honor For Artists

Toronto Woman Sculptor One Of Four To Receive High Award

TORONTO.—Four academicians were elected by the Royal Canadian Academy of Art at its annual meeting.

Electron of Florence Wyly, 57, year-old Toronto sculptor, makes her fourth woman to receive full academician status in the 55-year history of the R.C.A. Twelve of her works are in the National gallery at Ottawa. She is a native of Trenton, Ont. The others given academician award are Frank Carmichael, Toronto painter, who was born at Orillia, Ont.; James Edward Soper, Toronto architect, and Alphonse Joncas, Montreal portrait painter. Sonerville is a native of Hamilton.

A HEAVY NAZI LEVY PLACED ON JEWISH FORTUNES

BERLIN.—A Nazi levy of 20 percent on Jewish fortunes above $2,000 placed a new dilemma before hardened Jews while reports of Jewish suicides increased.

Manly wealthy Jews, lacking cash to pay the fine, realized they would have to let real property go at whatever prices they could get, thus making it financially difficult or impossible for them to emigrate.

Some had to choose whether to remain in Germany until after Aug. 15, 1939, when the last payment of the penalty is due, or to leave immediately and abandon all their property to the Nazis. In that case, they understood, emigration would be impossible without help.

Among mounting reports of suicides were cases of Jews with Aryan wives who killed themselves to relieve wives of stigma and to enable them to collect life insurance.

The levy is to pay the $4,000,000 indemnity to the Jews of Germany, assessed by Ernst von Rath, secretary in the German embassy in Paris, by a Munich settlement.

A decree signed by Finance Minister Lutz Scherzer-Krosigk, provided:

"A contribution of one billion reichsmarks ($400,000,000) will be collected from German Jews and those Jews without nationality in the form of a tax levy on their fortunes. Foreign Jews are exempted from the levy. The levy will not be imposed if the entire fortune, after deduction of all liabilities, does not exceed 5,000 reichsmarks ($2,000)."

Payments are to be made to the state treasury in four equal installments due Dec. 15, Feb. 15, May 15 and Aug. 15, without further notice. Further penalties were provided for non-compliance.

This was considered part of "the last chapter of the Jewish question in Germany" in which Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels warned there would be no mercy until the Hebrew is driven from German life.

Nobody in authority could say how many Jews were subject to the levy. In Berlin, 35,000 Jews are listed as owning more than 5,000 marks under the April 26 regulation, which provided Jews must declare their possessions to the government.

One aspect cheered some persons—the provision whereby compensation paid by insurance companies for breakage during the Nov. 19 anti-Semitic riot might be applied toward the billion-mark penalty. Title to such claims had passed to the government by a decree of Field Marshal Goering on Nov. 12, but insurance companies were instructed to pay those claims into the billion-mark fund.

If the insurance payments exceed the 20 percent levy, the entire amount will be confiscated by the government.

FRANCE TAKES PROMPT ACTION TO END STRIKE

PARIS.—Mobile guards battaled strikers occupying the Renault automobile works in an outbreak accompanying a wave of strikes which, at the peak, involved more than 74,000 workers.

Dozens were injured on both sides and much of the Paris factory's machinery was reported wrecked before the Renault strikers, estimated to number 10,000, left the plant.

Premier Daladier assumed complete control of measures to combat the strikes called in opposition to the government's decree law for lengthening the 40-hour week. He ordered 4,000 railroad employees at Valenciennes into military service and told police to clear important Paris factories.

At the Renault plant the strikers had barricaded themselves inside the works and barred doors with armored cars and tanks manufactured by the plant.

The guards, commanded by police prefect Roger Langeron, charged through back entrances after hurling tear gas bombs through windows. Inside, a pitched battle developed, with strikers using wrenches and hammers to combat blows of rifle butts.

More than a dozen policemen and workers were injured. More than 300 arrests were made.

Strikers, mostly in and in 54 other factories, mostly in northern France, were ejected by order of Daladier.

A total of 90,000 men have walked out to date in protest against the premier's economic and financial decrees, viewed as threatening social legislation, especially the 40-hour week.

In the Anzin mining basin on the Belgian frontier 25,000 walked out and announced a general strike would be called in the region shortly.

Following a strike of 1,200 railway workers in the same district, Premier Daladier requisitioned the railway at Anzin "to permit normal development" of the Denain and Anzin mines.

Devastating Fire

Palatial Homes Of Movie Stars Razed Near Santa Monica

LOS ANGELES.—Forest fires, worst in the history of southern California, blazed out of control on widely-separated fronts in three counties, leaving heavy damage and possible death in the Topanga canyon region north of Santa Monica and in the San Bernardino mountains.

Palatial homes of prominent motion picture personalities were burned in that region, including the residence of Richard Dix, actor, and Sam Woods and Frank Lloyd, film directors.

Residues of a fire swept into the famous Malibu beach district were reported by a sheriff's captain to have rushed into the surf for safety. Santa Monica sent life guards in speed boats to the scene.

INHUMAN HUNTING

Down in Bassano district they come into closer association with antelope hunting and hunters than in this part of Alberta. And the Bassano Recorder has some pronounced convictions on the sport. Quoting stories from the surrounding district of crippled, wounded, harried antelope left to fall victims of coyotes, the Recorder suggests that more restriction be placed upon this alleged sport. One suggestion is that permits should be issued only to those having ability with a rifle. It says:

"To shoot an antelope on the move requires a considerable amount of skill, and that is something the majority do not have. It is an even money bet that most of the men packing rifles after antelope could not hit a stationary six-inch bull at five hundred yards except by accident. At that range or even less, by aiming in the general direction of a standing herd, they may hit, but do not kill their quarry. And it is known that if they do hit and do not kill, that these men pursue the wounded animal to finally kill it and put it out of its misery. No, that is too much trouble."

The Recorder would like to see the sport abolished for some years to come—Vulcan Advocate.

Up near Drumheller a father was fined for permitting his eleven-year-old son to use a .22 calibre rifle which the kid had purchased with money accumulated from selling empty bottles.

A guy walked into a district barber shop last week end and queried: "Do you cut hair any longer?"

"Sure," replied the barber.

Now the guy claims his hair is no shorter.

Two neighbors were discussing a new-comer to town. "A bit of a spiritualist, isn't she?" one remarked.

"Well," her friend replied cautiously, "I shouldn't be surprised, but in fairness I must admit I've never seen any bottles going into her house."

George was sitting reading a newspaper when his wife entered the room. "George," she said, "what do you think? Mother wants to be cremated."

"Right!" said George, briskly, throwing the paper on one side and springing to his feet. "Where is she? Tell her to cut her things on."

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Nov. 22.—Possibility that the present trip of Premier William Aberhart and Provincial Treasurer Solon E. Low to the east may be followed by a repudiation of the Alberta government's obligation to meet the government of its financial obligations, was seen here this week by political observers.

It is known that although ostensibly the province has been unable to believe that it may be able to effect a refunding of the province's $157,000,000 public debt, Aberhart will discover that he cannot get funds from the people without the support of the Dominion government and without the approval of Alberta's bondholders who have been victimized during the past two and a half years to the tune of $10,000,000 in arrears in defaults of principal and interest on provincial securities, including the amount lost through arbitrary halving of interest rates.

It is believed some of the advisers of the government have declared that such actions have reduced public confidence and morale seriously within the province; that school parents are those doing the most difficulty to carry on financially because of the bad morale which has been bred by the government's example. It is known that some advised the Social Credit "experts."

D. Byrne, amateur expert, has told the government that some means must be found to undo the harm that has been done.

Alberta believed that Aberhart is in earnest in his desire to reverse his policy and re-establish full interest rates on the public debt while at the same time saving his own face and that of his government.

One way of doing it, said one man in the centre of the political picture here, is for the premier to put the blame on the federal government and then, in his speech to the legislature, tell them that refunding at low rates is possible if the government agrees to live up to its contractual obligations.

Such a political policy, of course, would have to be accompanied by attack on the federal government and all those horrible and mysterious "financiers" but, to all the premier to keep his face with the people.

It is inevitable that whatever the premier says to the public over radio, he always is glad to attend receptions for visiting financiers and other supposed "enemies of the people." He has attended at least two such functions recently, one at the manager's recent months here, and he was a jovial dinner guest with the Canadian newspaper publisher for a couple of weeks ago here.

Consequently, as far as within the Social Credit party goes, whether Provincial Treasurer Low would accompany the premier east on the requested expedition, and there was no question. One story had it that the premier did not want the treasurer to go; that Aberhart thought he could handle the debt himself, but so the all qualify, but the premier insisted that Low should go, too. Whatever the truth of that, it is known that Low did not know until practically the last day whether he was to go or not, and generally he believed that Low may not be in the cabinet much longer.

Proof of the desire of chartered banks to open up with the government as far as their possibly can under the law and within the realm of practicability was given last week in the announcement, which came first from within the government itself, that the chartered banks had admitted that they have the right to do business with the government's treasury branches, also known as "credit houses," to associate membership, thus providing the means by which depositors in the treasury branches can have their cheques cleared through the chartered banks without cost if within the same town, or at least the same exchange rates as the chartered banks charge for business between different towns.

The provincial treasury first requested such membership in the clearing house, and the banks approached the request. Under the executive of the Canadian Bankers' Association must approve such application, and that application was admitted immediately when the executive committee agreed in the meeting of the clearing house that the constitution of the clearing house there contained a clause which would have forbidden such association. The members quickly passed an amendment to the constitution to admit the treasury branches. Being less vocal in their own interests than are politicians, the treasury branches accepted the arrangement, until the government itself made it known.

At all Christian Science churches next Sunday, the subject of the lesson-sermon will be "God, the Preserver of Man." One of the scriptural quotations contained in the lesson-sermon is Psalm 91:10-11: "There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling; for He shall give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways." One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, is: "Angels, God's thoughts passing to man; spiritual intuitions, pure and perfect; the inspiration of goodness, purity, and immortality; countering all evil, sensuality, and mortality." (p. 581).

BLACKSMITH RETIRES

AT 90 YEARS OF AGE

Montgomery, Mich.—Geo. Willey retired from blacksmithing here on his 90th birthday, after 61 years working over the forge. "I'm a mite too old, I guess," Willey explained. Willey said that although blacksmithing has declined since the advent of the automobile, he had frequent calls to shoe horses, and only the infirmities of old age were forcing him to close shop.

Mrs. McWhinnie, of Saskatchewan, who had been spending a number of weeks here with her sister, Mrs. D. Walker, left Friday last to visit relatives and friends in Edmonton before returning to her home.

BELLEVUE HAPPENINGS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Alban's Anglican church, Coleman, on Saturday last, when Dorothy, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Simons, of Bellevue, became the bride of George, youngest son of Mr. and the late Mrs. J. M. Rushton, of Coleman. The bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white crepe, with a silver Juliet cap and slippers. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Nancy, who wore a dress of blue lace over satin, with white accessories. Her bouquet was also of pink and white carnations. Mr. M. Brennen, of Coleman, supported the groom. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with the table centered with a three-tier wedding cake. The happy couple have taken up residence in Coleman.

The first of a series of concerts being held on Sunday evenings was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Marcellin entertained the Hillcrest school teachers at their home here on Tuesday evening.

A week's sewing instructions given in the Catholic hall under Miss Arrowsmith, and sponsored by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., were well attended.

The sale and tea held in the Catholic hall on Saturday by the C. W. L. was well patronized.

The shortcomings in people are usually much easier to see than the really fine qualities, but it is the fine qualities which are best worth looking for.

Travelling costs of members of the Alberta government and board members are reported to have amounted to $35,702 in the past fiscal year ended March 31st.

The sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilmore, of Blairmore, sustained a broken leg when the horse he was riding near Lundbreck yesterday slipped and fell.

Twenty-six children were killed and about a dozen others injured when a train crashed into a school bus at a railway crossing near Salt Lake City yesterday in a snowstorm.

At the annual session of the Alberta Federation of Labor in Calgary this week, Fred J. White was re-elected president; with Carl Berg, of Edmonton, secretary-treasurer.

As we go to press, word has been received of the sudden death yesterday at noon of Mr. Benjamin Ball, popular manager of the liquor vendor store at Michel. No particulars are at hand.

An idea of the efficiency of pamphlet advertising could have been gathered from the local post office during this week. At least fifty per cent of the pamphlets distributed had to be swept from the lobby floor.

Joe Carver takes offence to his car being referred to in the Fernie Free Press as a "crate." He claims he has knocked around at sea on various vehicles, and that his present machine represents more closely the "barque." (Fernie Free Press please copy).

After one year's trial, special license plates for medical men's cars may be abandoned for the forthcoming year, it was indicated by provincial government authorities last week. Only 300 out of 625 doctors made application for the plates the past year.

NEW FORD CARS
NOW ON DISPLAY

Acclaimed from coast to coast as the finest Ford cars in the history of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, the 1939 Ford V-8 and De Luxe Ford V-8 are now on display.

Introduced in the Ford-Lincoln line is the Mercury 8, newest car in motordom and centre of interest at the motor shows. The Mercury is a big car distinguished by modern streamlined styling. Its design bears a certain family resemblance to the Lincoln-Zephyr, acknowledged style leader in the industry.

Ford, Mercury and Lincoln-Zephyr cars are all equipped with hydraulic brakes. All offer refinements in design and many mechanical advances and improvements.

The De Luxe Ford V-8, with wholly new streamlines, has a distinctive appearance of its own. At the same time, both it and the Ford V-8 share a family likeness with the Lincoln-Zephyr and the new Mercury 8.

The De Luxe has a deep hood, with long lines unbroken by louvres, low radiator grille in bright metal, and wide-spaced head-lamps set into the fenders. It is powered by an 85 h.p. V-8 engine of even more rugged construction than the 5,000,000 already in use.

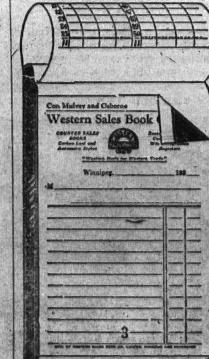

Hydraulic brakes are precision built to meet strict Ford standards of safety. Pedal action is exceptionally easy, and the brake shoes work in 12-inch drums with a total of 162 square inches of braking lining for quick stopping and long life.

Both in size and price range the Mercury 8 takes its place between the De Luxe Ford V-8 and the Lincoln-Zephyr V-12. It is a big car and a powerful one, powered by a V-type 95 h.p. engine. The wheelbase is 116 inches and the overall length just over 16 feet. Brakes are hydraulic.

All the four body types available on the Mercury 8 chassis are extra wide, and seat three persons comfortably in front and rear seats. The body types are a town-sedan, a sedan, a sedan-coupe, and a sport convertible.

In the choice of appointments and in interior tailoring, several new ideas are carried out. The cushions are in a panelled and piping treatment and the upholstery in the three closed cars is either broadcloth or Bedford cord, in taupe-color. The seat backs and seat cushions in the sport convertible are genuine hand-buffed leather. Cushions are exceptionally deep and comfortable. In all body types, the front seat is adjustable.

The Anglo-Canadian Oil Co.'s well, west of Pincher Creek, is now down 1200 feet.

Arctic Weather Forecasts

Would Assist Canadian And U.S.
Farmers, Says Scientist

Arctic weather forecasts so far in advance they could guide Canadian and United States farmers in their crop planting were predicted by Captain Clifford MacGregor, explorer and meteorologist.

MacGregor, recently returned from a 15 month Arctic meteorological expedition, said he would recommend establishment, through international co-operation, of six weather stations above Canada north of a latitude of 70 degrees. No meteorological data are collected in this vast area at present.

There is a permanent low-pressure area in that "Arctic region," MacGregor explained, and there is a strong drift of Polar air masses coming down across it. They move south, generally, instead of east over Greenland.

"Now if we would get 'cross-sections' of those Polar air masses reported it might be possible to predict our weather, within limits, for three months ahead."

The general character of a coming season might be learned so that farmers would know whether to plant a wet crop or dry crop. Such reports would be of great aid in the development of commercial air travel across the ocean."

He is now near Eliza, Greenland, where his expedition worked on the weather, would be a good place for a permanent station, MacGregor thinks. So would Thule, in Greenland, 100 miles above Cape York, Devon Island, Canada, is another good position.

"Watch what you're saying!" Jack exclaimed.

Kennedy Joe eyed him.

"Picks up that gold if you can find it," he answered coldly. "You'll find it flat, with old scratches on it—scraped out from ledge rifles in the main body of the stream. It never comes from gravel."

"That's what I was trying?" asked Kay. She swept her gaze suddenly to include another figure; Jeanne Towers had rounded the side of the cabin. Kay glared at her, then turned back to McKenzie Joe. "Answer me, was I lying?"

"Yes, you were lying," Joe answered quietly.

"Joe! Take that back!"

"Never mind doubling your fists," Jack, the older man said. "I could kill you the best day you ever lived. But I wouldn't. And I'm going—gettin' out of here."

"One of us has got to go?"

"Sure," the older man said. "I thought that all out—over there in the bush. But before I go, here's something for you. That gold finds a come-on—"

"You've said enough, Joe."

"Sure. I know it. But remember you dang just a little hay in front of a horse to make him follow you into a corral. You're bein' led on suspicion."

Jack Hammond lunged angrily toward his partner, only to be confronted by Jeanne Towers, a queer, desperate expression in her face. Kay Joyce merely stood still, her lips livid, her eyes strangely narrowed. The Northern girl braced herself.

"Get hold of yourself, Jack," she commanded.

Slowly, Jack Hammond moved back. There was long silence. Then the younger man asked:

"Well, Joe, do I buy you out—or do you take my share?"

"You can't have your share!" Kay snapped. "He's got to go!"

Kennedy Joe looked about him. Unconsciously wiped a shaking hand across his lips.

"I guess the young lady answered for me," he said. Jack stampeded into the cabin, to return almost as quickly. He held in his arms four heavy moosehide pouches, lumpy with gold nuggets.

"It's everything I've got," he said shortly. "Sign up and get out."

Jeanne Towers straightened.

"Jack!" she cried. "You fool—you fool!" Then with a half sob, she whirled and ran back to her cabin.

CHAPTER IX.

"Pretty Good Nugget," He Said at Last.

More than two months had passed since that morning when Jack had walked drearily back from the lake, gaunt with the weight of strange, foreboding sadness. Once the heat of their quarrel had begun to cool, memory had, to a degree, at least, brought about a truce in the bitterness between McKenzie Joe and himself. The signing over of the necessary papers which had put Jack in possession of all the claims had been done in silence, it is true, but not taciturnity.

On two more days had passed since that morning when Jack had walked drearily back from the lake, gaunt with the weight of strange, foreboding sadness. Once the heat of their quarrel had begun to cool, memory had, to a degree, at least, brought about a truce in the bitterness between McKenzie Joe and himself.

The signing over of the necessary papers which had put Jack in possession of all the claims had been done in silence, it is true, but not taciturnity.

Jack Hammond dropped his shovel and went upstream. Kay appeared excited as usual, herself carrying a pan and filling it with a part of the scrapings. Hammond bent beside her at the stream, where, dipping water, she began the work of reducing the conglomerate residue of the rich, talc-bearing loam on the bedrock. Beside her, as the water slowly trickled and dipped and raised and circled, it came to Jack that Kay had learned much of mining in the short time she had been here. Now she spoke casually of pockets and faults, of pay gravel and sedimentation—suddenly he halted. The pan had been cleared, the girl had given an exclamation and was bending over it, pointing by a nod to a nubbin of gold which lay there.

"It's a knock-out," Hammond exclaimed, picking up the serrated piece of mineral. Then, as though the better to appraise its worth, he reached into a pocket for his prospecting glass.

Both him and Kay talked on of her hopes. She couldn't understand, and said, why this claim didn't bring out more values. Day after day, the output seemed the same—enough for expenses, enough to keep the cottage going and to pay Mrs. Carewe, the woman of all work—but little more.

Hammond hardly heard her. Again he was confirming every day since McKenzie Joe had pulled out—the fact this was true nugget gold and that there was no slight indication of sniper material.

That had been a serious charge. It had meant that Kay was preparing to find gold when such had not been the case. Why she should do this, Joe Britten had not fully explained. He had only insisted that the tiny flakes and nuggets were "nugget gold," gleaned by scraping along the ledges and roots of the tree current of Little Creek, when acting in the same manner as the riffles of a flume, these ledges had picked up stray bits of new metal, washed down from the hills by spring freshets. The old prospector had insisted that they were not true nuggets, that the force of water, driving them between thin ledges of stone, had to a degree flattened them and so marked them that the eyes of deep experience could identify them, thus making it impossible for them to have come from Kay's gravel bed.

Hammond himself had not been given a chance to look; Kay, in her anger, had thrown them away.

But there was no doubt that Kay's acquisition was true gravel gold. The same had been true on two-score other surreptitious investigations. It was as though Jack Hammond had put Joe Britten on trial, and day after day was repeatedly proving him guilty.

"Pretty good nugget," he said at last. "It must be about a penny-weight."

"All of which helps," the girl answered, with a casual shrug of her shoulders. "Maybe I'll get down to real money some day—you never can tell."

"Nugget can with gold mining," Hammond answered. At once he returned to his own work, again reverently driving in his metal stakes. He knew that this claim of his was beginning to weaken; the nuggets were not as large or as frequent as when he and Joe first had staked it. Doggedly he told himself that it could not, must not, fail out. There must be money to keep that work going above, and he knew that Kenning could not furnish it. In truth, Kenning was providing little in the form of funds; they had thrown their holdings into one pot, share for share. But the cash to keep development going must come from Hammond. Kenning made up for his lack of it by his advice.

Stop Scratching

RELIEVE SCRATCHING IN A Minute
Even the most stubborn itching of eczema, hives, psoriasis, athlete's foot, rashes and other skin eruptions can be stopped in a minute. Just as surely as you are surely alive, you can stop scratching. Red capsules are your oxygen-carriers. They carry oxygen to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying capsules, your kidneys, liver, heart, lungs, brain, muscles, glands, etc., gets pale, falters and dies. Your nerves become weak and you feel depressed.

Remembers King Alexander

Yugoslavia Lives Constantly In Memory Of Slain Monarch

While waiting for 15-year-old King Peter to reach 18 and assume the crown, Yugoslavia lives constantly in the burning memory of his father, Alexander, who was assassinated in Marseilles, France, in 1934, while on a visit of good fellowship.

So potent is this remembrance that one might say the late king still occupies the throne, for his people continue to think his thoughts and carry out his policies.

Indeed it's so strong that it formed by the best possible source, for a weakening during the last two years of the bonds of friendship between France and Yugoslavia long before the Czechoslovak crisis came along to do vast damage to French prestige. Folk in this part of the world don't forget.

The people will tell you quietly but with cold precision which speaks of deep bitterness that Alexander lost his life because of insufficient protection.

If you want to get the full force of this feeling go with me across the great public park on the heights above the winding Danube to the ruins of the grim old fortress which still stands on across the valley as though it really means its ancient masters have fight left in them. There in the military museum we shall see an exhibit of such stark realism as to bring one up with a jolt.

Carefully preserved is every detail of the bullet-riddled, blood-stained clothing which His Majesty wore when he was shot down. Laid out at full length in a glass case is his uniform, even to the once white collar with its terrible trace of violence. There is the scarred motorcar in which he was riding. The discolored cushions reveal the tragedy.

Throughout the day crowds linger about this exhibit. A woman was maimed in a state of collapse near the glass case.

In this museum we motor some 60 miles to a group of lovely, quiet country-side to Opatija. Here is the white marble church of Saint George. Under the church in the royal crypt is the body of the late Alexander. Ever since the assassination his people, including hundreds of thousands of peasants from all parts of the country, have been making pilgrimages to pray by his tomb.

That had been a serious charge. It had meant that Kay was preparing to find gold when such had not been the case. Why she should do this, Joe Britten had not fully explained. He had only insisted that the tiny flakes and nuggets were "nugget gold," gleaned by scraping along the ledges and roots of the tree current of Little Creek, when acting in the same manner as the riffles of a flume, these ledges had picked up stray bits of new metal, washed down from the hills by spring freshets. Another session of the Alberta legislature has come and gone, but Albertans are still paying the same outrageously high price for gasoline and fuel oil. There has been a lot of talk about conservation and artificial restriction of production, but no reduction of price to the consumer. We understood that good Social Creditors were unalterably opposed to all forms of artificial restriction of production in order to keep prices at a high level to the consumer. We got this idea from often hearing Mr. Aberhart jeer at the foolishness of restricting the production of coffee in the United States, when these products were needed in the world. How come he seems to think Alberta should make gasoline scarce in order to maintain a high price to the consumer? The world needs lots of gasoline and Albertans could use a lot more if the price was 20¢ instead of 35¢. Is Mr. Aberhart giving us another "reverse" ride in that old Social Credit flivver—not the "dream" car?—Trochu Tribune.

Alberta's S. C. government and all good Social Credit supporters can sympathize with Herr Hitler in his persecution of Jews in Germany. Herr Aberhart for the past three years has been carrying on the same kind of a campaign here in Alberta against those he does not like. His Press and Bank decrees with their two million dollar penalties and jail terms, and the taking away the civil rights of a certain class of citizens, is in line with Herr Hitler's treatment of the helpless Jews. Had Herr Aberhart been clothed with Herr Hitler's power, Alberta would have witnessed the same shameful display of oppression and intolerance as is taking place in Germany today. Those of us who would have suffered have every reason to be thankful that in Canada the supreme power rests with the federal government at Ottawa and not in any provincial capital.—Trochu Tribune.
